TRA 2026 Budapest - Re-generation in transport

- Making the conference highly attractive to young researchers and inviting them to present would give them the opportunity to show their potential in front of the most important European transport and mobility stakeholders. In this way, they could form invaluable connections within the international transport sector.
- Adapting European research results in the field of digitalization, automation, optimization, and the regeneration of transport and mobility systems that can contribute to the EU achieving its goals related to social, environmental and economic sustainability, particularly climate change, resilience, safety and security.
